About IOTA

Mission

IOTA is a community of scholars and professionals dedicated to the worldwide exchange of knowledge within the context of the Orthodox tradition.

IOTA's goals are:

- 1) Organize international conferences and facilitate group research projects;
- 2) Partner with people and institutions around the world in order to contribute to their mission of teaching and transmitting the faith;
- 3) Engage contemporary culture in light of the Orthodox tradition;
- 4) Contribute to the growth and renewal of the Orthodox Church; and
- 5) Support pan-Orthodox unity and conciliarity.

Board of Directors

IOTA Groups

IOTA consists of twenty-eight permanent groups representing various knowledge domains pertinent to Orthodox Christian Studies. Each group is led by one or more chairs and steering committee members. At IOTA's mega-conferences, the groups organize regular sessions that reflect their distinctive focus. While the groups are self-governing, IOTA coordinates their work and encourages their cooperation. To ensure growth, the Board of Directors welcomes proposals for the creation of new groups.

First Session | 9:00-11:00

Session 6: Secularity in/and Orthodox Christianity: An Ominous Threat or a Creative Challenge? Part 1

Orthodoxy in the Public Square and Media Group
Chair: Dr. Vasilios Makrides (Germany)

Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Rev. Dr. Dragos Herescu (UK): “Orthodoxy Today: Negotiating Its Identity between Secularisation and Migration: The Shift from ‘Landlocked’/Territorial to ‘Portable’/Global Religious Identity” Mr. Jeremy N. Ingpen (UK): “Olivier Clément as a Theologian of Engagement with the Secular World” Rev. Dr. Christophe d’Aloisio (Belgium): “Contemporary Understanding of Episcopacy in Secularised Contexts” Dr. Dimitrios A. Vasilakis (Germany): “Dionysian Apophaticism in 20th Century Orthodox Discourse: A Way Out from the Western Secular Impasse?” Ms. Lia Lewis (USA): “If You’re Not Close to God, Who Moved? Contemporary ‘Culture Wars’ and Orthodox Christianity in the USA” Session Description: The Orthodox Christian world has historically regarded secularity as part of a Western Christian deviation from the authentic Christian Church and tried to remain outside its range of influence. Yet, secularity has entered the Orthodox realm through the political sphere, intellectual milieus and modern media. Secularity also constituted a serious challenge triggering diverse defensive responses among the Orthodox Churches in Eastern and South-Eastern Europe under the Communist regimes. At the turn of the 21st century, however, globalization has triggered a re-assessment of the concept of secularization and the Orthodox Churches have adopted a rather ambiguous position. Some Churches have assumed the role of guardian against (Western) secularity, while other Churches as well as a new generation of Orthodox intellectuals advocate the need for a more constructive approach to secularity.

Session 96 (Round Table Discussion): Philosophies of Mission Today Sponsored by the Orthodox Christian Mission Center Chair: Fr. Martin Ritsi (USA)
Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Pegasus Hall (3rd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Rev. Dr. Stephanos Ritsi (Albania) H.E. Metropolitan Gregorios of Cameroon (Cameroon) Bishop Neophytos of Nyeri and Mt Kenya (Kenya) H.E. Metropolitan Iosif of Buenos Aires and South America (Argentina) Session Description: Orthodox mission work throughout the world has had different manifestations based on different philosophies and cultural realities of different geographic situations. Some of that is due to geopolitical constraints, and other is due to a changing climate toward mission work in a given location and in the Church as a whole. The goal of this session is to discuss the different approaches to mission that are used by the Orthodox Church in different cultural contexts and to relate these to our changing times. We will have several speakers all of whom will be asked to focus on one or several of the following key questions that we have identified as shaping mission work throughout the world: Do we still need missionaries today? How has missionary work changed in the last decade? At what point in missionary work do we consider that a particular Church is established—is it based on the ability of the community to replicate, support, govern, or theologize (or all of these)? How is culture respected in Orthodox missions today? How much do we/should we consider outreach to non-Christians and unreached groups in our missionary plans? What are the best and worst practices of Orthodox missions in the last five decades? What have lessons have we learned from past mission experiences and where do we go from here as next steps in mission work?

Session 33: Orthodox Models of Unity and Dialogue with Western Christian Traditions Ecumenical Dialogue Group Chair: Prof. Emeritus Ivan Dimitrov (Bulgaria)

Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Rev. Dr. Dagmar Heller (Germany): “Mutual Understanding: A Basic Problem in Theological Dialogues between Orthodox and Protestants” Dr. Bradley Nassif (USA): “What Can Orthodox and Protestant Evangelicals Learn from Each Other?” Dr. Dimitrios Keramidas (Italy): “The Ecclesiology of the Orthodox-Catholic Dialogue: Some Open Questions” Rev. Dr. Sergio Mainoldi (Italy): “‘Signum unitatis’: The Theology of Language in the Interconfessional Debate: Discussions on the Eucharist at the Council of Florence” Dr. Viorel Coman (Belgium): “Orthodox Christianity and Receptive Ecumenism: The Theological and Spiritual Foundations of a Transformative Dialogue” Session Description: This session will debate on the major issues and updates of the dialogue between the Orthodox Church and the Churches and Confessions of Western tradition, focusing on Protestants and Evangelicals. The session will also explore the models of unity and Church communion as developed in contemporary Orthodox theology.

Session 20: Religious Nationalism and the Politics of Identity Political Theology Group Chair: Dr. Pantelis Kalaitzidis (Greece)
Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Andromeda Hall (2nd floor)	Prof. Paul Ladouceur (Canada): “Ethno-Theology and Nationalism: Dumitru Staniloae and Dietrich Bonhoeffer in Dialogue” Prof. Brandon Gallaher (UK): “‘His Claim upon Our Whole Life’: The Legacy of the Barmen Declaration’s Revelational-Exegetical-Eschatological Political Theology in the ‘Declaration on the Russian World (Russkii Mir) Teaching’” Dr. Ionut Biliuta (Romania): “A Twisted ‘Ecclesiology’? Orthodox Perceptions of Nationalism in Interwar Romania” Dr. Regula Zwahlen (Switzerland): “Nationalism and the ‘Short Flash of Orthodox Political Theology’ in the 1930’s” Prof. Jennifer Wasmuth (Germany): “Judaism in the Context of the National Discourse of the Russian Orthodox Church” Session Description: Religious nationalism seems to be the most serious problem facing the Orthodox Church since the fall of Byzantium (1453) and the period of introversion which began with this crucial historic event. Significant aspects of this problem are the identification between Church and nation, Church and ethno-cultural identity, Church and state, and, consequently, the idea of national Churches. This session will discuss the problems and challenges the Orthodox Church faces by assuming this “national” role, well as the intellectual and historical ties that link Orthodoxy with the contemporary resurgence of ultranationalism and illiberalism across the United States and Eastern Europe.

Session 27: Critical Ecclesiology Ecclesiology Group Chairs: Rev. Prof. Cyril Hovorun (Sweden) / Dr. Michael Hjälm (Sweden)
Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Centaurus Hall (1st floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Sr. Dr. Vassa Larin (Austria): “Being Church within Time: Towards an Ecclesiology of Body, Mind, and Spirit” Dr. Berge Traboulsi (Lebanon): “Eastern Orthodoxy and Church Reform: Towards Shaping a Modern Church Culture” Dr. Harry Huovinen (Finland): “The Borders of the Church: Definable or Indeterminable?” Dr. Yury Safoklov (Germany): “Unity or Oneness? An Ontological Approach to the Essence of the Church” Rev. Dr. Václav Ježek (Czechia): “Is ‘Autocephaly’ a Viable Ecclesiastical Notion?” Dr. John Monaco (USA): “Idolatry, Ontology, and Absence: Contemporary Challenges to Orthodox Ecclesiology” Session Description: Ecclesiology is one of the youngest theological disciplines. Yet, it attracts a lot of attention among modern scholars. IOTA’s Ecclesiology Group has invited both established and emerging scholars, interested in the matters related to the church, to approach these matters in the spirit of constructive critique. The papers are of both historical and systematic natures and interdisciplinarity has been encouraged. Ecumenical and interreligious approaches will enrich the discussion as well. Given that the modern church reflects on itself often in the light of modern secular thinking, presenters have been encouraged to blend into their presentations current philosophical, social, and political theories.

Session 28: Romanian Orthodox Perspectives on Mission Romanian Orthodoxy Group Chair: Dr. Ionut-Alexandru Tudorie (USA)

Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Rev. Dr. Radu Bordeianu (USA): “Beyond Eurocentric Missions to America: Orthodoxy and the Nation” Rev. Dr. Bogdan Bucur (USA): “Re-Learning Christianity with Fr Nicolae Steinhardt: Insights from The Journal of Joy” Dr. Răzvan Porumb (UK): “Nicolae Stenhardt’s Paradigm of Cultural and Existential Ecumenism” Dr. Atanasia Văetiși (Romania): “Paisius Velichkovsky’s Legacy between the Eastern Philokalic Tradition and the Westernization of Artistic Language: The Difficulty of Reception” Mr. Silvian-Emanuel Man (Romania): “The Manifestation of Ethnic and National Identity in Romanian Monasteries During the 19th Century: The Case of the Neamț and Secu Monasteries and the Prodromu Skete from Mount Athos” Session Description: The session will address the cultural and ecumenical dimensions of mission as reflected in the emigration of European Orthodox faithful to the United States of America, as well as in the works of Paisius Velichkovsky and Nicolae Steinhardt. On the one hand, the cultural heritage will be presented as one of the causes for missionary inertia. On the other hand, Orthodoxy will be presented as creating a richer Romanian culture and the culture being a catalyst for embracing Orthodoxy.

Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	V. Rev. Dr. Ivan Moody (Portugal): “Monophonia kai Polyphonia: The Aesthetics of Harmonization” Ms. Tuuli Lukkala (Finland): “The Soundscapes of Orthodox Christian Worship in Finland: Aesthetic Judgements of Participants and Performers” Mr. Catalin Cernatescu (Romania): “Contemporary Practices in Romanian Orthodox Chant” Prof. Nicolae Gheorghiiță (Romania): “The Psaltic Music Prints of Macarie the Hieromonk in Vienna in 1823: Aesthetic Considerations” Dr. John Plemmenos (Greece): “‘He Who Exalts Himself Shall Be Humbled’: Orthodox Perceptions of the Aesthetic in Byzantine Chant” Dr. Viktoria Legkikh (Austria): “Services of the Russian Church outside Russia: Tradition and Innovation”

	Session Description: This session addresses the question of aesthetics (in the very broadest sense) as it relates to the various kinds of music chanted in the services of the Orthodox Church, a topic which has gained hugely in importance in recent years. While detailed examinations of specific chant repertoires abound, other approaches, those of the more wide-angled lens, have enabled discussion across repertoires, chronological layers and geographical spaces from a very wide variety of methodological perspectives. It is our conviction that further discussion specifically on Orthodox and related chant repertoires, both monophonic and polyphonic, as part of this broader picture, and that study of these questions will facilitate the understanding of the different musical traditions existing in the Orthodox Church.

Session 43: Philosophical Theology as an Interpretative Tool Philosophical Theology Group Chair: Prof. Smilen Markov (Bulgaria)
Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Fr. Dcn. Ananias Sorem (USA): “An Orthodox Critique of Natural Theology” Prof. Igor Zaitsev (Russia): “Accepting the Postmodern Challenge: The Theological Implication of Nögovizyn’s Method” Dr. Christoph Schneider (UK): “The Mediation of Love: Reflections on S. Kierkegaard, V. Solovyov and P. Florensky” Dr. Romilo Aleksandar Knežević (Serbia): “Freedom – Created of Uncreated: Sergius Bulgakov and Nikolai Berdyaev on the Creatio Ex Nihilo and the Third Kind of Nonbeing” Mrs. Nancy Hitching (UK): “Call the Midwife: The Maieutic Elenchus of Living Icon Socratic Midwife Elisabeth Behr-Sigel as Pharmakon Maker” Session Description: The section examines the potential of theology to facilitate understanding by validating hermeneutical tools for critical reflection on human ideas and practices. The ethos of theology requires considering alternatives since theology maps modes of human existence activated in the sublime dimensions of sacrament and Christology. Theology is dialogical and has particular relevance for the philosophical discourse. Our section focuses on the potential of theology to mediate the encounter of different forms, schools and contexts of philosophy. Intellectual history has known philosophical theologies, structured as normative conceptual models, e.g. the natural theology in its post-medieval version. These epistemological endeavors are hardly apt to address contemporary debates, nor are they in line with patristic tradition. Speculative theology should be seen as mapping the experience of God within a specific contextual and criteria framework.

Session 101: IOTA Talks Recording Session 1 Co-sponsored by the Eagle River Institute
Thursday, January 12 9:00-11:30 Building: St Constantine Spiritual Center Room: Chapel of St Alexander (4th floor) Address: Polymeri & Perevou, Volos 382 22	9:00 - Dr. Nathan Hoppe (Albania): “The Mission-Critical Task of the Church” 9:25 - Dr. Ashley Purpura (USA): “Honoring the Icons Within” 9:50 - Prof. Lori Peterson Branch (USA): “Understanding Secularism” 10:15 - Rev. Dr. Harry Pappas (USA): “Gratitude & Forgiveness” 10:40 - Dr. Irina Paert (Estonia): “Understanding Conciliarity” 11:05 - Dr. Ralph Lee (UK): “Ethiopian Biblical Commentary and 1Enoch” Session Description: Since 2021, IOTA has partnered with the Eagle River Institute to produce IOTA Talks. These are short, engaging videos that give Orthodox scholars a venue to share their work with a non-academic audience and serve IOTA’s goal to contribute to the growth and renewal of the Orthodox Church. At the 2023 conference, we are scheduled to record 24 of these 12-minute IOTA Talks over two days, with the hope that this can become a significant and ongoing format for disseminating IOTA scholarship. We are grateful to the scholars who responded to the general invitation to offer an IOTA Talk. Audience access will be controlled during the actual recordings in order to limit noise and due to the small size of the Chapel.

Session 30: Icon of Christ: The Sight of Unity Orthodoxy and the Visual Arts Group Chair: Dr. Georgios Kordis (Greece)
Thursday, January 12 9:00-17:00 (all day) Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: St Catherine Foyer (ground floor)	Mr. Philip Davydov (Russia) Dr. Vanya Sapundzieva (Bulgaria) Mr. Ivan Polverari (Italy) Dr. Andrei Mușat (Romania) Dr. Mihai Coman (Romania) Dr. Todor Mitrović (Serbia)

	Dr. Georgios Kordis (Greece)
	Session Description: This session is presented in the form of an artistic workshop, during which participants will attempt to render the Icon of Christ in different artistic and expressive modes. It is a practical and creative response corresponding to the theme of the session and the Conference in general. This innovative form of painting-on-the-spot session could inspire a meaningful synergy of arts and theology, through interaction and discussion with other participants of the conference.

Session 73 (Book Review): Wisdom in Christian Tradition (OUP, 2022) Chair: Prof. Marcus Plested (USA)
Thursday, January 12 11:30-13:00	Rev. Prof. Alexis Torrance (USA) Rev. Prof. Brandon Gallaher (UK) Rev. Prof. Nikolaos Loudovikos (Greece)

Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Session Description: Following a survey of the biblical and classical background, Wisdom in Christian Tradition offers a detailed exploration of the theme of wisdom in patristic, Byzantine, and medieval theology, up to and including Gregory Palamas and Thomas Aquinas in Greek East and Latin West, respectively. Three principal levels of Christian wisdom discourse are distinguished: wisdom as human attainment, wisdom as divine gift, and wisdom as an attribute or quality of God. This journey through Wisdom in Christian Tradition is undertaken in conversation with modern Russian Sophiology, one of the most popular and widely discussed theological movements of our time. Sophiology is characterized by the idea of a primal pre-principle of divine-human unity (Sophia) manifest in both uncreated and created forms and constituting the very foundation of all that is. Sophiology is a complex phenomenon with multiple sources and inspirations, very much including the Church Fathers. Indeed, fidelity to patristic tradition was to become an ever-increasing feature of its self-understanding and self-articulation, above all in the work of its greatest exponent, Fr Sergius Bulgakov (1871-1944). This ‘unmodern turn’ (as it is here christened) to patristic sources has, however, long been fiercely contested. This book is the first to evaluate thoroughly the nature and substance of Sophiology’s claim to patristic continuity. The final chapter offers a radical re-thinking of Sophiology in line with patristic tradition. This constructive proposal maintains Sophiology’s most distinctive insights and most pertinent applications while divesting it of some its more problematic elements.

Session 61: Orthodoxy, Politics and Culture Orthodoxy, Politics and International Relations Group Chair: Dr. Elizabeth Prodromou (USA)
Thursday, January 12 11:30-13:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Andromeda Hall (2nd floor)	Dr. Lampros Psomas (UK): “St Paisios: Prophet of a Chosen Nation” Mr. Daniel Kisliakov (Russia): “Politics and Socio-Cultural Context: Bulgakov and Afanasiev, Sobornost, Ecclesiology and Ecumenical Participation in a Changing World” Dr. Effie Fokas (USA): “What’s Roe Got to Do with It? Session 47 (Round Table Discussion): Theological Education in the 21st Century: Orthodox Theological Institutions Group Chair: Mrs. Marianna Kakounaki (Greece)
Thursday, January 12 11:30-13:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Centaurus Hall (1st floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Dr. Ioannis Kaminis (Greece/Bulgaria) Rev. Prof. George Parsenios (USA) Prof. Aristotle Papanikolaou (USA) Right Rev. Prof. Jack Khalil (Lebanon) Prof. Philip Kariatlis (Australia) Rev. Dr. Dragos Herescu (UK) Rev. Prof. Chad Hatfield (USA) Rev. Dr. Michael Bakker (Netherlands) Session Description: After briefly introducing their respective Schools, the Deans will engage in a round table discussion, prompted by a number of questions to which all panel members will have the opportunity to respond, in order to bring to the fore the way the missional dimension of their Schools is understood and put into practice. With this more interactive and dialogical form of presentations, the hope is that not only commonalities might emerge in this shared endeavor—together with existent or impending threats in light of the contemporary context—but also opportunities for mutual enrichment and better cooperation in their response to Christ’s transformative mandate of “making disciples” (cf. Mt 28:19).
Session 19: Orthodox Christian Religious Education Association Orthodox Education Group Chair: Rev. Dn. Prof. Risto Aikonen (Finland)

Specifically, it addresses the diversity of theological opinion in the patristic age with respect to the notions of sin. It will also explore the dramatic changes that occurred during the seventh century and how those changes have had a lasting impact on the identity and worship of modern Orthodox communities.

Session 29 (Book Review): Marco Guglielmi, The Romanian Orthodox Diaspora in Italy: Eastern Orthodoxy in a Western European Country Romanian Orthodoxy Group Chair: Rev. Dr. Radu Bordeianu (USA)

	Session Description: Marco Guglielmi's book The Romanian Orthodox Diaspora in Italy: Eastern Orthodoxy in a Western European Country (Palgrave Macmillan, 2022) provides a sociological understanding of transformations within Eastern Orthodoxy and the settlement of Orthodox diasporas in Western Europe. Building a fresh framework on religion and migration through the lens of religious globalization, it explores the Romanian Orthodox diaspora in Italy as a case study in the experience of Eastern Orthodoxy in a Western European country. The research brings to light the Romanian Orthodox diaspora's reshaping of the more customary social traditionalism largely spread within Eastern Orthodoxy. In its position as an immigrant group and religious minority, the Romanian Orthodox diaspora develops socio-cultural and religious encounters with the receiving environment and engages with certain contemporary challenges. This book refutes the vague image of Orthodox Christianity as a monolithic religious system composed of passive religious institutions, rather showing current Orthodox diasporas as flexible agents marked by dynamic features.

Session 7: Secularity in/and Orthodox Christianity: An Ominous Threat or a Creative Challenge? Part 2

Orthodoxy in the Public Square and Media Group
Chair: Dr. Lina Molokotos-Liederman (Switzerland)

Thursday, January 12 15:00-17:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Dr. Spyridoula Denia Athanasopoulou-Kypriou (Greece): “Art as Public Theology: ‘Heroism, Orthodoxy and Sacrifice’ in the Performance Art of Marina Abramovic” Ms. Caroline Hill (Sweden): “Framing of Abortion and Church-State Relations in Russian Orthodox Online Portals” Mr. Julian Hayda (Ukraine) / Prof. Justin K.H. Prof. Cristian Sonea (Romania): “The Faces of Secularization in the Urban Orthodox Communities from Romania” Session Description: The Orthodox Christian world has historically regarded secularity as part of a Western Christian deviation from the authentic Christian Church and tried to remain outside its range of influence. Yet, secularity has entered the Orthodox realm through the political sphere, intellectual milieus and modern media. Secularity also constituted a serious challenge triggering diverse defensive responses among the Orthodox Churches in Eastern and South-Eastern Europe under the Communist regimes. At the turn of the 21st century, however, globalization has triggered a re-assessment of the concept of secularization and the Orthodox Churches have adopted a rather ambiguous position. Some Churches have assumed the role of guardian against (Western) secularity, while other Churches as well as a new generation of Orthodox intellectuals advocate the need for a more constructive approach to secularity.

Session 9: Analytical Approaches to the Greek Fathers

Patristics Group
Chair: Dr. Basil Lourie (Russia)

Thursday, January 12 15:00-17:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Andromeda Hall (2nd floor)	Dr. Basil Lourie (Russia): “Numbers and Diversity in Triadology” Prof. Ivan Christov (Bulgaria): “Logic in the Discourse of Divine Energies” Dr. Paweł Rojek (Poland): “Patristic and Analytic Theories of Universals: Recent Discussions of the Ontology of Gregory of Nyssa” Prof. Andreas Zachariou (Georgia): “Philosophy in Gregory Acindynos’ Theological Perceptions” Dr. Dmitry Biriukov (Switzerland): “The Logic of Palamism” Prof. Dmitry Makarov (Russia): “Theodore Metochites, Theophanes of Nicaea, Macarius Macres: A Semantic and Paraconsistent Logical Approach to the Representatives of the Late Byzantine Palamite Tradition, 14th-15th Centuries” Session Description: The session will be focused on the crossroads of current investigations in theology and philosophy. The Byzantine Fathers used philosophical and logical concepts available to them for expressing their theological ideas, and this process resulted not only in purely theological statements but also in some appropriation and modification of the philosophical and logical concepts. For the modern theologians and philosophers, this fact provides a challenge that is, at least, twofold. First: The Byzantine Fathers used, even if transforming it, the philosophy (or rather philosophies) current for their culture but less current for our contemporary culture which has philosophies of its own. Could we now express the same theological truths in a different philosophical language? This is a question of survival for the Orthodox theological tradition. Second: Nobody denies that the Byzantine Fathers allowed themselves, where they considered it necessary, to break with all logical traditions of Antiquity. Did this lead to simply illogical propositions or did it result in some new logics? This question is a part of a larger question (and discussion) about the Byzantine logic in general: did such a phenomenon exist or not? The participants of the session consider the Byzantine logic(s) to be a real phenomenon, whose existence is especially perceivable in theology. It, however, requires, for its adequate modern explanation, a recourse to the non-classical and even non-consistent logics, which became known in the twentieth century and are presently at the frontline of current logical research. In this way, the study of Byzantine theology could be profitable for modern studies of logic. Thus, we hope that the session will contribute to creating a common workspace for theologians, patrologists, historians of philosophy, and logicians.

Session 82: Deification Special Session Chair: Prof. Mark Spencer (USA)
Thursday, January 12 15:00-17:00 Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Prof. Edith M. Humphrey (USA): “Deification in the Synoptic Gospels and Johannine Literature” Prof. Mark McInroy (USA): “A Doctrine of the Universal Church: Deification according to Sixteenth- and Seventeenth-Century Anglicans” Prof. Marcus Plested (USA): “The Doctrine of Deification in the Macarian Writings” Rev. Prof. Alexis Torrance (USA): “St. Gregory Palamas and Palamism” Dr. Pantelis Kalaitzidis (Greece): “Deification in Contemporary Greek Orthodox Theology” Prof. Mark Spencer (USA): “Deification and Theological Anthropology” Session Description: This will be a special session on the topic of deification (theosis). Each of the talks during this session will be based on a chapter from the forthcoming Oxford Handbook of Deification, which is being edited by Paul Gavrilyuk, Matthew Levering, and Andrew Hofer. The session, like the handbook from which its content is drawn, aims to present views on deification from a number of perspectives: Biblical, Orthodox, Catholic, and Anglican. Several of the papers seek a rapprochement among these perspectives; others are aimed at grasping the historical and scriptural roots of the doctrine of the deification. The session will be of interest to a wide audience, including Biblical scholars, historical and systematic theologians, and

	philosophers (speakers are drawn from each of these professions), as well as anyone interested in ecumenism. The topic is deeply relevant to the study of Orthodox Christianity, since the pursuit and understanding of deification has been central to Orthodox practice and theology for its entire history. Indeed, while (as several of the papers in this session argue) other Christian traditions also have a tradition of thinking about deification, it is Orthodoxy (and central Orthodox theologians like Gregory Palamas) that has emphasized deification as the true end of the Christian life more than any other Christian tradition. This session will highlight that emphasis, while putting Orthodox reflection on deification into conversation with other Christian traditions' views on this central doctrine.

Session 87 (Round Table Discussion): Orthodox Mission in North America Orthodox Theological Society in America (OTSA) Chair: Dr. Jim Skedros (USA)
Thursday, January 12 15:00-17:00 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	Rev. Bohdan Hladio (Canada) Dr. Joel Houston (USA) Fr. Luke Veronis (USA) V. Rev. Dr. Peter Baktis (USA) Session Description: This session will explore various aspects of mission in the North American context. Some questions that we hope to explore include: How do we speak to a society that has little exposure to Orthodox Christianity? How can we find our authentic voice in a multi-Christian, multi-religious and/or secular environment? How do we reach out to those Christians—including Orthodox Christians—who have grown up in the Church but have left?

Session 11: Law and Legality in Orthodox Christian Ethics Moral Theology and Theological Anthropology Group Chair: Fr. Demetrios Harper (USA)
Thursday, January 12 15:00-17:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Dr. Marian Simion (USA): "Patterns of Orthodox Just War Thinking and the Contemporary Public Contestations" Ms. Grace Hibshman (USA): "Victims, Economica, and the Sermon on the Mount" Dr. Stephen Meawad (USA): "Orthodox Christian Acquiescence to Pseudo-Deontological Ethics" Dr. Jennifer Lockhart (USA): "Orthodox Ethics and Elizabeth Anscombe's 'Modern Moral Philosophy'"

	V. Rev. Dr. Philip LeMasters (USA): “Just War Theory and the Peacemaking Witness of the Orthodox Church: Critical Engagement with a Western and Legally Oriented Tradition of Social Ethics”
	Session Description: It has become almost commonplace to dissociate an Orthodox Christian approach to ethics from the concepts of law or legality. But such an approach comes with its own risks. Tackling issues ranging from just war theory and human rights to deontological ethics and the philosophy of oikonomia, this session will offer much needed re-evaluation and deepening of Orthodox thinking on this vital topic.

Session 16: Orthodox Chant, Aesthetics and Diaspora Church Music Group Chair: Very Rev. Dr. Ivan Moody (Portugal)

How have the notion and reality of diaspora in the various jurisdictions of the Orthodox Church affected the creation or extension of different repertoires, both musical and textual? What are the practical ramifications of this, and what are the prospects for the future?

	Session Description: Since 2021, IOTA has partnered with the Eagle River Institute to produce IOTA Talks. These are short, engaging videos that give Orthodox scholars a venue to share their work with a non-academic audience and serve IOTA’s goal to contribute to the growth and renewal of the Orthodox Church. At the 2023 conference, we are scheduled to record 24 of these 12-minute IOTA Talks over two days, with the hope that this can become a significant and ongoing format for disseminating IOTA scholarship. We are grateful to the scholars who responded to the general invitation to offer an IOTA Talk. Audience access will be controlled during the actual recordings in order to limit noise and due to the small size of the Chapel.

This session considers ways that the Orthodox Church is ministering, might minister, or is not ministering to these problems, or might even be a cause thereof.

Session 45 (Round Table Discussion): The Place of Religion in the Public Sphere Political Theology Group Chair: Prof. Aristotle Papanikolaou (USA)
Thursday, January 12 17:30-19:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Andromeda Hall (2nd floor)	Right Rev. Bishop Irinej Dobrijevic (USA) Prof. José Casanova (USA) Dr. Regina Elsner (Germany) Prof. Haralambos Ventis (Greece) Session Description: Any discussion about political theology unavoidably implies the crucial question of the place of religion—and more specifically of the church and theology—in the public space, and therefore the legitimacy of a public/discourse for the church in the liberal secularized or religiously neutral societies of late modernity, and the way the former connects to the latter. The panel seeks also to discuss the place of religion in the predominately Orthodox countries, as well as the tension between a certain understanding of secularization theory which does not see for religion any other place except that of the

	private domain, and the “return of the God” movement which seeks a “triumphal” return of religion in the public space.

Session 99: The Russian World Special Session Chair: Prof. Michael Hjälrm (Sweden)
Thursday, January 12 17:30-19:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Centaurus Hall (1st floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Rev. In the shadow of the war in Ukraine this notion has been strongly connected with a vertical hierarchy, where the Russian Orthodox Church has regained a central place in the public square transcending the borders between the countries supposedly connected with this notion: Ukraine, Belarus and Russia. Regardless of its present usage the genealogy and teleology of the concept is a complex and multidisciplinary idea, ranging from the earliest traces of its origin to the Russian émigré intelligentsia, who required a new identity embracing various nationalities into one culture. Alexander Schmemmann and Alexander Solzhenitsyn were instrumental in forwarding the idea of a unique Russian culture with a precise salvific ultimate goal. In addition to this the ecclesio-social context of the notion makes it evident that Russkiy Mir creates both identity politics as well as an identity theology, which jeopardizes the very purpose of an inclusive, sobornal understanding of the notion.

Session 35: The Role of Canon Law in the Life and Mission of the Orthodox Church Canon Law and Pastoral Theology Group Chair: Rev. Dr. Alexander Rentel (USA)

Thursday, January 12 17:30-19:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Pegasus Hall (3rd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Mr. Georgios Vlachodimitris (Greece): “Contextuality and Timelessness in the Theology of the Church’s Canons” Dr. Ioannis Kastanas (Cyprus): “The Orthodox Cypriot Ecclesiastical Justice within the Frame of Church and State: An Overview” Rev. Dr. Alexander Rentel (USA): “Words of Primacy in the Canons” Miss Tiffany Butler (UK): “Nodes and Networks in Canon Law and Pastoral Theology” <hr/> Session Description: The current ecclesial life of the Orthodox Church has to face an increasing number of canonical problems at the local, regional, and universal levels. In order to solve these problems, Orthodox theologians are often quoting the Canons of the Church, texts dated to the first Christian millennium, that may or may not apply to the ecclesial life of the present-day post-modern society. Without understanding the Canonical Tradition of the Orthodox Church and its role in the life and mission of the Church, and without its proper interpretation, no progress can be made for the inter-Orthodox and ecumenical dialogues, unless the canonical aspects of these implications are seriously debated. But in order to engage in such a debate, it is expedient to advance towards a unity of thought on the role of Canon Law in the Orthodox Church. The main goal of this Group for the first session is to determine the relationship between the Orthodox Canonical Tradition and the complex life of the Church, understood as a divine-human reality and not as a social, organizational, or legal predetermined society or identity.

Dr. Anton Vrame (USA) Dr. Gayle Woloschak (USA) <hr/> Session Description: This session will present the genesis, history and current work of the Orthodox Theological Society in America (OTSA) as a potential model for Orthodox scholars to gather and organize in other parts of the world. It will also focus on some of the challenges and benefits of being a pan-Orthodox organization that is affiliated with the Assembly of Bishops of the United States, but not an organization of the Assembly. The format of this session is a round table. We will begin with three short presentations by members of OTSA and then open the floor for discussion.

Session 54: Byzantium and the Other Byzantine Orthodoxy Group Chair: Dr. George Demacopoulos (USA)
Thursday, January 12 17:30-19:00 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	Dr. Tia Kolbaba (USA): “Bogomils and Others: Changing How We Talk about Heretics” Dr. Katherine Kelaidis (USA): “Making Space of the Other: New Directions in Byzantine Studies and Orthodox Christian Mission” Mr. Andreas Doulfis (Greece): “Classification of Spatial Interaction Types between Different Religious Groups in the Early Byzantine Cities (4th-6th c.)” Mr. Elias Krippas (Greece): “Nicolaos Cabasilas’ Relation with Western Christianity” Session Description: This session of the Byzantine Studies Group will focus on aspects of Byzantium and its “others.”

Session 55: Lay Movements and Leadership in the History of Slavic Orthodoxy Slavic Orthodoxy Group Chair: Dr. Vera Shevzov (USA)
Thursday, January 12 17:30-19:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Dr. Daniil Krapchunov (Russia): “Visualization of the Christian Heritage in Russian Folk Culture” Dr. Andreas Kalkun (Estonia): “Prayers of Illiterate Setos from the Early 20th Century: Religious Geography and Local Mariology” Dr. Ruth Coates (UK): “Iulia de Beausobre (1893-1977) and the English Translation of Russian Orthodox Spirituality” Dr. Nadezhda Beliakova (Germany): “Sisterhoods of Mercy in Russian-Speaking Orthodoxy in Contemporary Russia: Women’s Missionary Work and Relations with Institutional Church Structures” Session Description: Despite contemporary efforts to promote an inclusive institutional understanding of “church” that embraces clergy and laity alike, in practice, the term “the church” nevertheless is still commonly associated with an institutional structure that includes primarily clergy and monastics. Until recently, such a view has been reinforced by histories of Orthodox Christianity and the teaching of church history in Orthodox seminaries and theological academies. In attempts to broaden the parameters of our narratives of Orthodox church history, this session considers the role that lay men and women in Slavic Orthodox regions have historically played—and continue to play—in cultivating and sustaining Orthodoxy and the life of the Church.

Session 64: The Liturgy in History Liturgical Studies Group Chair: Prof. Alexander Lingas (UK)
Thursday, January 12 17:30-19:00 Building: Park Hotel Room: Argo Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Dr. Aleksandr Andreev (USA): “Night Prayer in Pre-Mongol Kievan Rus: In Search for Byzantine Analogs” Prof. Stig Simeon Frøyshov (Norway): “The Cathedral-Monastic Distinction Revisited” Prof. Jerzy Ostapczuk (Poland): “Menologia in Early Printed Cyrillic Liturgical Tetraevangelia: General Characteristics” Dr. Walter Ray (USA): “Participation in Heavenly Liturgy in Belief and Practice in Early Christianity” <hr/> Session Description: This session is devoted to a range of topics representing recent historical research in the field of liturgical studies. Two of the papers bring to light new evidence clarifying aspects of the formation, dissemination, and development of Eastern Christian forms of worship in the Byzantine and Slavic worlds. The other two offer new perspectives on two paradigms that have been fundamental to modern historical interpretations of Orthodox liturgy: the cathedral-monastic distinction and the notion that earthly worship entails participation in the eternal heavenly liturgy.

Session 100: The Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America at 100 Years Special Session sponsored by the Holy Cross Greek Orthodox School of Theology Brookline, MA, USA Chair: Rev. Prof. George Parsenios (USA)
Friday, January 13 9:00-11:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Andromeda Hall (first floor)	Dr. Jim Skedros: “Greek Orthodox Clergy in the First Four Decades of the 20th c.” V. Rev. Prof. Anton Vrame: “Visions and Expectations: The Keynote Addresses of Archbishop Iakovos” Session Description: The Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of America observed the 100 th Anniversary of its establishment by the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Constantinople in 2022. Holy Cross Greek Orthodox School of Theology held a conference to observe the centenary and to provide an opportunity to study aspects of the Archdiocese, including its leadership, its ministries, and issues facing the Archdiocese as the largest, but still a small, Orthodox Church in the United States. This session will offer papers delivered by members of the Holy Cross faculty at the conference.

Session 77: Orthodox-Catholic Dialogue: A New PRO ORIENTE Database and the Challenges of Ecumenical Reception in East and West Special Session Chair: Ms. Katerina Pekridou (Greece)

	Session Description: Theological dialogues between Catholics and Orthodox began on different levels – official and unofficial, national as well as international. While in the first decades the participants strived towards a better understanding between Christians who have become “foreign brothers and sisters” due to the estrangement of churches in East and West over the centuries, in recent times the dialogue increasingly focuses on common challenges for both Catholics and Orthodox in an progressively coalescent and interconnected world. This session will introduce a new database, established by the PRO ORIENTE Steering Committee for Orthodox-Catholic Dialogue, providing online access to all relevant resources for Orthodox-Catholic Dialogue: Documents of the International Commission for Theological Dialogue between the Roman Catholic Church and the Orthodox Church; common statements and texts of theological dialogues on national or regional levels; common studies of unofficial groups for theological dialogue like the Irenaeus Group, etc. The database includes the texts, if available, in four Western and four Eastern languages. The new website will be launched before the IOTA conference. Its presentation during the session aims to serve as impulse for theological reflection on the issue of ecumenical reception. Theological agreements do enable progress towards unity when they are sufficiently received at different levels of church life. Thorough reflection on the types, conditions and contexts of reception is therefore of decisive importance; essential is also the question of how clergy, theologians and believers can be inspired to actively share and shape the vision of unity. This session is especially relevant to the study of Orthodox Christianity because it will present an important tool providing access to a variety of documents; it will contribute to a critical evaluation of the reception processes in East and West; it will propose ways and methods for a more effective reception of the fruits of Orthodox-Catholic dialogue. The session aims at stimulating dialogue by connecting different commissions and levels of dialogue to foster exchange between them, and by facilitating reception of the results of the dialogues in theological education and church life. The intended audience of this session are scholars who are engaged in ecumenical dialogues.

Session 58: Orthodox Mission and Diaspora Missiology Group, co-sponsored by OTSA Chair: Dr. Evangelia Voulgaraki (Greece)

Bohdan Hladio (Canada): “Universal Jurisdiction: An Obstacle to Orthodox Unity in North America” Session Description: At this panel papers will be presented on a variety of challenges and issues related to the historical and contemporary missional calling of Eastern and Oriental Orthodox diaspora communities, including case studies of witness in diaspora contexts, the impact of the experience of diaspora communities on the theology and praxis of mission in Orthodox heartlands, negotiating ethnic and religious identity while adapting to new contexts and identities, the implications for Christian witness of multiple ecclesial jurisdictions in diaspora contexts, and the involvement of diaspora communities in pan-orthodox and/or ecumenical witness.

Session 44: Philosophical Theology as a Pattern for Metaphysical Speculation Philosophical Theology Group Chair: Prof. Igor Zaitsev (Russia)
Friday, January 13 9:00-11:00 Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall	Dr. Thomas Cattoi (USA): “The Eloquence of Divine Love: Radical Orthodoxy’s Critique of Postmodernity and David Bentley Hart’s Notion of Analogy as Agapic Practice” Mr. Andrey Shishkov (Estonia): “God, Grace, and Object-Oriented Approach”

Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Rev. Dr. Stephen Headley (France): “A Theology of God’s Revelation: A Dogmatic Defense of Theology in Contemporary France” Prof. Smilen Markov (Bulgaria): “Love as Consolidation of the Self-in-the-World: Martin d’Arcy’s Speculation on Love as a Metaphysical Supplement to Phenomenology” Dr. Svetlana Konacheva (Russia): “The Embodiment of Religion: A Hermeneutical Approach” Mr. Jack Louis Pappas (USA): “Christ the Chiasmus: Maximus the Confessor, Karl Rahner and the Prospects of a Neo-Chalcedonian Turn in Phenomenology” Session Description: The section examines the potential of theology to facilitate understanding by validating hermeneutical tools for critical reflection on human ideas and practices. The ethos of theology requires considering alternatives since theology maps modes of human existence activated in the sublime dimensions of sacrament and Christology. Theology is dialogical and has particular relevance for the philosophical discourse. Our section focuses on the potential of theology to mediate the encounter of different forms, schools and contexts of philosophy. Intellectual history has known philosophical theologies, structured as normative conceptual models, e.g. the natural theology in its post-medieval version. These epistemological endeavors are hardly apt to address contemporary debates, nor are they in line with patristic tradition. Speculative theology should be seen as mapping the experience of God within a specific contextual and criteria framework.
Friday, January 13 9:00-11:00 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	Session 17: Georgian Chant Church Music Group Chair: Dr. Tamar Chkheidze (Georgia) Ms. Khatuna Managadze (Georgia): “Georgian Cultural-Educational Centres and Georgian Church Music” Ms. Ekaterine Kazarashvili (Georgia): “The Religious and Secular Traditions of Christmas Day in Georgia” Dr. Tamar Chkheidze (Georgia): “Mode Models in Medieval Christian Music” Ms. Nino Samkharadze (Georgia): “The Georgian Translations of the Musical Cycle of ‘Shekhvetiliani’” Session Description: This session covers the various peculiarities of the medieval Georgian liturgical practice, the services of Holy Friday,

	Christmas secular and liturgical services, parallels in Byzantine and Georgian liturgical traditions: ekphonic signs and unpitched notation, melodic models, and the musical system of Georgian chants.

Session 65: Evgenii Vodolazkin's Laurus and the Orthodox Tradition Orthodoxy and Literature Group Chair: Rev. Dr. Chrysostom Koutloumousianos (Greece)
Friday, January 13 9:00-11:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Right Rev. Bishop Gerasim Eliel (USA): "The Function of Fools-for-Christ in the Novel Laurus" Prof. Ioana Patuleanu (USA): "Healing Communities in Contemporary Fiction: The Holy Fool in Eugene Vodolazkin's Laurus and Marilynne Robinson's Home and Jack" Prof. Lori Peterson Branch (USA): "The Shape of Metanoia in Eugene Vodolazkin's Laurus" Mr. Daniel Lightsey (USA): "Vodolazkin's Laurus and Bulgakov's Notion of the Spiritual Life" Prof. Evgenii Vodolazkin (Russia) Session Description: Praised as "Russia's answer to The Name of the Rose" and a book that "aims directly at the heart of the Russian religious experience," Eugene Vodolazkin's award-winning novel Laurus (2015) quickly became an Orthodox classic in Russia and beyond. These papers explore this novel and its rich, multi-faceted relations to the Orthodox tradition, from the perspectives of literary, hagiographical, spiritual, and theological study. Papers will circulate amongst the panel members three weeks in advance, and Professor Vodolazkin will serve as respondent.

Session 103: IOTA Talks Recording Session 3 Co-sponsored by the Eagle River Institute
Friday, January 13 9:00-11:30 Building: St Constantine Spiritual Center Room: Chapel of St Alexander (4th floor)	9:00 - Dr. George Demacopoulos (USA): "Victory over the Barbarians (?)" 9:25 - Prof. Paul Ladouceur (Canada): "Sergius Bulgakov: An Emerging Theological Giant" 9:50 - Prof. Paul Ladouceur (Canada): "The Rebel Saint: Saint Maria of Paris" 10:15 - Prof. Edith M. Address: Polymeri & Perevou, Volos 382 22	10:40 - Dr. Anna Briskina-Muller (Germany): “Intellectual as Mystical” 11:05 - Prof. Philip Kariatlis (Australia): “Theology and Life: From Hollow Information to Joy-filled Transformation” Session Description: Since 2021, IOTA has partnered with the Eagle River Institute to produce IOTA Talks. These are short, engaging videos that give Orthodox scholars a venue to share their work with a non-academic audience and serve IOTA’s goal to contribute to the growth and renewal of the Orthodox Church. At the 2023 conference, we are scheduled to record 24 of these 12-minute IOTA Talks over two days, with the hope that this can become a significant and ongoing format for disseminating IOTA scholarship. We are grateful to the scholars who responded to the general invitation to offer an IOTA Talk. Audience access will be controlled during the actual recordings in order to limit noise and due to the small size of the Chapel.

Session 30: Icon of Christ: The Sight of Unity Orthodoxy and the Visual Arts Group Chair: Dr. Georgios Kordis (Greece)
	Session Description: This session is presented in the form of an artistic workshop, during which participants will attempt to render the Icon of Christ in different artistic and expressive modes. It is a practical and creative response corresponding to the theme of the session and the Conference in general. This innovative form of painting-on-the-spot session could inspire a meaningful synergy of arts and theology, through interaction and discussion with other participants of the conference.

Second Session | 11:30-13:00

Session 25: Body and Soul Philosophy of Religion Group Chair: Prof. David Bradshaw (USA)
Friday, January 13 11:30-13:00 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Prof. Richard Swinburne (UK): “Defending Plato’s Substance Dualism” Rev. Dr. Isidoros Katsos (UK): “Self - Soul - Body: What the Church Fathers Saw but We Might Miss” Dr. Nathan A. Jacobs (USA): “The Eastern Patristic View of the Soul through the 8th Century” Session Description: Most contemporary philosophers are substance physicalists, holding that humans are the same as their bodies. But a few contemporary philosophers are substance dualists, holding that humans have two parts – body and soul. They are either “hylomorphists” following Aquinas in holding that both parts are essential parts of each human being, or Platonists who hold that their soul is the one essential part of each human. The physicalist view seems incompatible with the Christian view that there is life after death; and so Christian thinkers have sought to justify one of the latter two views. This session will consider the history and justification of Christian, and especially Orthodox, views on the issue.

Session 49 (Round Table Discussion): SOW Collaborative Science and Theology Group Chair: Rev. Dr. Perry Hamalis (USA)
Friday, January 13 11:30-13:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Dr. Peter Bouteneff (USA) Dr. Bruce Seraphim Foltz (USA) Prof. Gayle Woloschak (USA) Dr. Elizabeth Theokritoff (UK) Prof. Efthymios Nicolaidis (Greece) Session Description: This will be a round table discussion of the Science and Orthodoxy around the World (SOW) project on environment and evolution, a continuation of a discussion that took place in June 2022 in Napierville, Illinois.

Session 66: Orthodox Literature as Mission

Orthodoxy and Literature Group Chair: Prof. Lori Peterson Branch (USA)
Friday, January 13 11:30-13:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Andromeda Hall (2nd floor)	Fr. Anthony (Gaelan) Gilbert (USA): “Come and See: Orthodox Mission, Literature, and Metanoia” Rev. Dr. Alexey Maksimov (Russia) Prof. Norbert Hintersteiner (Germany) Dr. Heather Major (UK) Mrs. Karen Hetherington (UK) Session Description: SALT: Crossroads of Religion and Culture is a new Orthodox journal of Cross-Cultural Theology, Dialogue and Mission seeking to promote scholarly reflection and critical assessment of the theology, history and contemporary praxis of Orthodox mission. It provides a forum for international, ecumenical and cross-disciplinary

	discussion of missiology, theology of religions, social and cultural anthropology, history, and religious studies. The inaugural issue (2022) contains peer-reviewed articles, essays, informative articles, news, book reviews and a special obituary section on Athanasius Akunda, Bishop of Kisumu and Western Kenya (1971-2019). Geographically, the articles cover East and West Africa, India, Brazil, Alaska, Russia, Romania, Greece and Italy, while the questions discussed range from America's First Peoples to the Coronavirus pandemic, Orthodox engagement with Muslims and Islam, the spread of Orthodoxy in Sub-Saharan Africa in the 20th/21st centuries, African traditional marriage, the Dervish orders of the Ottoman provinces, Hindu/Christian interfaith dialogue, the relationship of theology and social anthropology, and missionary consciousness in Russia before the 1917 Revolution. Scholarly experts in the fields of missiology, theology, anthropology and journal editing from a wide variety of geographical, jurisdictional and confessional backgrounds have been invited to join the review panel. The Review Session will appeal to all scholars/professionals concerned with issues of Christian witness, especially Orthodox witness, in the contemporary world.

Paul Gavriluk and Sarah Coakley, and Perceiving Things Divine (2022), eds. Frederick Aquino and Paul Gavriluk. The papers will introduce various historical and systematic approaches to the study of "perceiving things divine". The session focuses on the work of late Eastern Christian theologians, such as St Symeon the New Theologian and Gregory Palamas.

Session 37: Contemporary Issues (20th-21st Centuries): Middle Eastern Christian Perspectives Christianity in the Middle East Group

Chair: Prof. Dr. Bishara Ebeid (Italy)
Friday, January 13 11:30-13:00 Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Right Rev. Bishop Anba Suriel (USA): “Theological Education in the Coptic Orthodox Church: An Ancient and Modern Perspective” Prof. Dr. Assaad Elias Kattan (Germany): “ We Choose Abundant Life : A Document about Middle Eastern Christianity Prompted by the Arab Spring?” Mr. Michael Long (Greece): “The Coptic Orthodox Renewal during Egypt’s Nahda ” Rev. Dr. Alexander Zanemonets (Finland): “Christianity in Israel Today: Russian-Speaking Christians in Different Churches of the Holy Land” Session Description: This session focuses on how Middle Eastern Christianity has grappled and continues to grapple with a number of modern and contemporaneous challenges such as theological formation (Egypt), migration (Israel/Palestine), ecumenism, and the Arab modernity project (Nahda). This project has recently become a matter of renewed debate, especially thanks to the document We Choose Abundant Life (2021) dealing with issues such as citizenship and the relationship of religion and reason.

Session 69 (Book Review): The Moralist International: Russia in the Global Culture Wars Chairs: Prof. Kristina Stoeckl (Austria) / Dr. Dmitry Uzlaner (Austria)
Friday, January 13 11:30-13:00 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	Prof. Aristotle Papanikolaou (USA) Mr. Andrei Shishkov (Estonia) Mr. Sergey Chapnin (USA) Dr. Effie Fokas (Greece) Dr. Elizabeth Prodromou (USA) Dr. Ina Merdjanova (Germany) Session Description: The Moralist International (New York: Fordham University Press, 2022) analyzes the role of the Russian Orthodox Church and the Russian state in the global culture wars over gender and reproductive rights and religious freedom. It shows how the Russian Orthodox Church in the last thirty years first acquired knowledge about the dynamics, issues, and strategies of Western Christian Right groups; how the Moscow Patriarchate has shaped its traditionalist agenda accordingly; and how the close alliance between church and state has turned Russia into a norm entrepreneur for international moral

	conservatism. Including detailed case studies of the World Congress of Families, anti-abortion activism and the global homeschooling movement, the book identifies the key factors, causes and actors of this process. Kristina Stoeckl and Dmitry Uzlaner then develop the concept of conservative aggiornamento to describe Russian traditionalism as the result of conservative religious modernization and the globalization of Christian social conservatism. The Moralist International continues a line of research on the globalization of the culture wars that challenges the widespread perception that it is only progressive actors who use the international human rights regime to achieve their goals by demonstrating that conservative actors do the same. The book offers a new, original perspective that firmly embeds the conservative turn of post-Soviet Russia in the transnational dynamics of the global culture wars.

Session 70 (Book Review): Cyril Hovorun, Eastern Christianity in Its Texts Chair: Prof. Cyril Hovorun (Sweden)
Friday, January 13 11:30-13:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Dr. Michael Hjälml (Sweden) Dr. Samuel Rubenson (Sweden) Session Description: Surveying theological literature produced in the Christian East from the first through the 20th century, Eastern Christianity in Its Texts (London: Bloomsbury, 2022) explores different theological themes (analytical and mystical), genres (epistles, treatises, and poetry), and milieux (Greek, Armenian, Western and Eastern Syriac, Russian and Romanian). The book illustrates the evolution of Orthodox thought, how it influenced and was influenced by intellectual, social, and political environments. It demonstrates a theology in context, and yet displays consistency in the traditions spread through different epochs and countries. The book is divided in five parts, each standing for an epoch with distinct features: formation of the Christian identity in the era before Constantine, the golden age of theology in the period of Late Antiquity, the pinnacle of erudism and mysticism in the eastern Middle Ages, wrestling with the Modernity imported from the West in the 18th-19th centuries, and finally theological polyphony in the 20th century. The book is intended for educated non-specialists, as well as undergraduate and graduate students in the field of Eastern Christian Studies.

Session 74: Orthodoxy in Georgia Special Session Chair: Prof. Giorgi Khuroshvili (Georgia)

Friday, January 13 11:30-13:00 Building: Park Hotel Room: Argo Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Prof. Giorgi Khuroshvili (Georgia): Introduction to Orthodox Thinking in Georgia H.E. Metropolitan Grigoli (Berbichashvili) of Poti and Khobi (Georgia): The Path of the Georgian Church from the Beginning to the Present Day Prof. Lali Zakaradze (Georgia): The Main Stages of Christian Orthodox Philosophy in Georgia Prof. Irakli Kakhidze (Georgia): Religious Attitudes and Peculiarities of Modern Georgian Society Prof. Mikheil Gogatishvili (Georgia): “Christian Aspects of Power Legitimation in Medieval Georgia” Session Description: The session will be dedicated to Orthodox thought in Georgia. The session presents the process and stages of the development of Orthodox thought in Georgia, namely a brief analysis of the history of the Georgian Orthodox Church, the specifics and features of Georgian Christian thought in the Middle Ages and early modern times, and sociological aspects of the role and importance of the Orthodox Church in modern Georgia. The purpose of the session is to introduce to the interested audience the past and present situation of the Orthodox Church and Christian thought in Georgia. There is not much knowledge about the Georgian Orthodox traditions in international academic circles, thus the audience will be introduced to some essential and important features and peculiarities of it.

Lunch Break | 13:00-15:00

Friday, January 13 13:00-15:00	Lunch break (on your own)
Friday, January 13 13:00-15:00 LOCATION	Luncheon Book Discussion (Session 67): Alexandros Papadiamandis’s “Fey Folk” Orthodoxy and Literature Group Chairs: Prof. Lori Peterson Branch (USA) / Rev. Dr. Chrysostom Koutloumousianos (Greece) Session Description: The Orthodoxy and Literature Group invites mega-conference presenters to read Alexandros Papadiamandis’s thought-provoking and charming 1892 short story, “Fey Folk,” and to participate in a discussion of the story moderated by Professor Lori Branch of the University of Iowa and Rev. Dr. Chrysostom Koutloumousianos, abbot of Faneromeni Monastery, Naxos. The short story is available in English (translated by David Connolly) and in Greek on the IOTA website at {link TBD}.

	The Greek short story writer Alexandros Papadiamandis was an Orthodox priest's son and psaltis. The fourth of nine children, he was born on the island of Skiathos in 1851, where he died in 1911 after a career as a journalist, fiction writer, and literary translator. Popularly called "the Greek Dostoevsky," Papadiamandis is loved by many for capturing the subtle everyday beauty and extraordinary transformative experiences of Eastern Christianity. "Fey Folk" tells the story of Agallos, a dreamy, middle-aged husband who drags his feet each day on his way home from work, and who, one snowy Christmas eve, mysteriously fails to come home. About meandering and sudden transformations, "Fey Folk" is heart-warming tale of family life and monasticism and raises important questions about what repentance means in the context of rural 19th-century poverty and the traditional dowry system. This event is designed to allow academics, clergy, and laypeople to experience both the joy of discussing treasures of the Orthodox literary tradition with each other and the potential of such conversations to enrich pastoral care, spiritual formation, parish life, and outreach for people of all ages.

Third Session | 15:00-17:30

Session 10: Beyond Personalism? Re-Assessing the Framework for Orthodox Theological Anthropology Moral Theology and Theological Anthropology Group Chair: Rev. Prof. Alexis Torrance (USA)
Friday, January 13 15:00-17:30 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Rev. 	approach to theological anthropology in the twentieth century and into the twenty-first. This has not, however, come without controversy. Rather than simply re-litigate this contested issue, this session seeks to substantially move the discussion forward by focusing on neglected figures (such as Myrrha Lot-Borodine, Maria Skobtsova, S.L. Frank, and Fr Dumitru Staniloae) and themes (such as vulnerability and ascetic theology) that can enrich our understanding of Orthodox theological anthropology for the 21st century.

Session 50: Science, Theology and the Mission of the Church Science and Theology Group Chair: Prof. Gayle Woloschak (USA)
Friday, January 13 15:00-17:30 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Rev. Antonios Kaldas (Australia): “Experience of God as an Apologetic Strategy: Bringing Eastern Mystical Cognitive Science” Dr. Giorgi Kapanadze (Georgia): “Orthodox Theology in the Context of Scientific Modernity: Challenges and Perspectives” Session Description: The mission of the Church in the intellectual climate of our time is seriously hampered by the way in which the physical and biological sciences are often treated by Orthodox Christians with indifference or suspicion, or even assumed to be somehow opposed to the Christian message — evolution being a notable example. Papers in this session include discussions of this problem, as well as many examples of Orthodox theological understanding engaging constructively with scientific understanding and methodology.

Session 8: Patristic Studies Patristics Group Chair: Prof. Ivan Christov (Bulgaria)
Friday, January 13 15:00-17:30 Building: Forum Center Room: Pegasus Hall (3rd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Mr. Dominic V. This session aims to indicate the variety of doctrinal expressions during the patristic era and to demonstrate the multiple historical contexts in which the Church Fathers and their opponents developed their doctrines.
Session 14: Teaching and Praying Orthodoxy on the Basis of the Patristic Sources in Modern Slavic Theology Orthodox Asceticism and Spirituality / Slavic Orthodoxy / Patristics Groups Chair: Prof. Irina Paert (Estonia)

The session aims to explore how theologians, monks and laypeople from different Slavic and Slavic influenced countries have received the patristic heritage, both in dogmatics as well as in prayer, in the era of Modernity.

	Dr. Gergana Lazarova (Bulgaria): “The Baptism of Christ: Iconography and Iconology”
	Session Description: This session will try to open following questions: Is every artistic language a proper vehicle for rendering the icon of Christ and every other icon? Can the characteristics of the proper iconographic language be defined? What was the practice embraced by the Church body in the past for adopting stylistic elements from different artistic traditions? What is the role of the art of iconography in the mission of the Church? Is a dialogue between art of the icons and contemporary artistic trends possible and legitimate, and what would be the goals of this dialogue?

Session 40: The Mission of God and the Mission of Humanity at the Intersection of Scripture Biblical Studies Group Chair: Prof. Edith M. Humphrey (USA)
Friday, January 13 15:00-17:30 Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Dr. Daniel Ayuch (Lebanon): “The Pilgrim Church in the Book of Acts as a Pattern for Orthodox Mission Today: A Biblical Theological Study” Rev. Dr. Aleksei Volchkov (Germany): “East of Jerusalem: Law Observant Christian Mission in the 1st-4th Centuries AD” Session Description: In Scripture, God’s love and faithfulness are poured out on all creation. Jürgen Moltmann noted that this mission does not originate with the Church, but that we are invited to participate in the mission of the Triune God. A primary meeting place or intersection of this participation is Scripture. The apostle Paul, for instance, envisions the mission of the apostles as sharing in the mission of God, who unveils Himself in His people, as well as in their witness of words and deeds. This session lifts up the idea of mission found across the Scriptures, and through various hermeneutical methods.

Session 93: Creation Care and Christian Responsibility

Special Session Chair: Fr. Bassam Nassif (Lebanon)
Friday, January 13 15:00-17:30 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	Dr. Christina Nellist (UK): “Creation Care: Metropolitan Kallistos of Diokleia’s Teachings on Orthodoxy, Animals and Nature” Rev. Dr. Filotheos-Fotios Maroudas (Germany): “The Dominion as a Fraternal Responsibility to Animals Rather Than a Supremacy” Dr. Nikolaos Asproulis (Greece): “Animals, Animality and the Human Being: An Addendum (or Correction?) to Christian Anthropology” Fr. Nassos (USA): “Moving Towards the Image of God: The Urgent Need for Parish Engagement in Responsible Creation Care” Session Description: There is still an acknowledged gap, both at academic and pastoral levels, between Orthodox theory and practice on the important theological, spiritual and ethical subject of animal suffering. With the increasingly obvious crisis of climate change destroying our environments and the animal and plant species within them, each one of us must recognize and fulfil our Christian duty and responsibility to act on behalf of God’s creation. Only then will we advance our journey towards achieving the true Image of an all-loving and compassionate God. Clergy, academics and lay presenters interrogate patristic and contemporary Orthodox teachings, and/or present relevant themes of immense importance to both humans and animals, in order to outline an existing but often forgotten tradition, which provides guidance for a more holistic and compassionate treatment of animals than is currently the case. This special session testifies that abuse, exploitation and/or indifference to the suffering of God’s creation is against God’s will and the teachings of the Orthodox Church. As such these practices have negative soteriological consequences for humanity. Practical suggestions are proffered to address the problems outlined.

Session 97: The Power of Popular Expressions of Orthodox Intangible Heritage

Oriental Orthodoxy Group

Chair: Prof. Mariz Tadros (UK)

Friday, January 13 15:00-17:30 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Prof. Mariz Tadros (UK): “Methodologies for Fostering Intergenerational Transfer of Orthodox Heritage: Comparative Study of Iraq, Egypt and Syria” Dr. Elias Halabi (Lebanon): “Intergenerational Preservation of Syriac Orthodox Heritage through Youth-Led Popular Embodiments” Prof. Wolbert Smidt (Germany): “The Popular Orthodox Heritage of the Tigray Region, Ethiopia” Mr. Andrew Youssef (Canada): “Looking toward the East: An Orthodox Approach to Mission through Meditation, Ecumenism, and Multifaith Presence” Rev. Anthony Shenouda (Australia): “The Arrow Prayer Outside the Monastery”
	Session Description: This panel brings together scholars of Coptic, Syriac, and Ethiopian heritage to explore the diffusion of religious identity in the everyday popular practices of these populations in Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Ethiopia, and the Diaspora. Through exploration of prayers, oral histories, heritage practices shared in the papers and through digital stories and videos, we will explore how Orthodoxy manifests itself in day to day practices as well as the role of youth in sustaining popular heritage for the preservation of communal identity. The power of popular understandings and imaginations of heritage to sustain a collective memory of the past, and how it shapes and informs visions for the future will be discussed at length.

	Session Description: Since 2021, IOTA has partnered with the Eagle River Institute to produce IOTA Talks. These are short, engaging videos that give Orthodox scholars a venue to share their work with a non-academic audience and serve IOTA’s goal to contribute to the growth and renewal of the Orthodox Church. At the 2023 conference, we are scheduled to record 24 of these 12-minute IOTA Talks over two days, with the hope that this can become a significant and ongoing format for disseminating IOTA scholarship. We are grateful to the scholars who responded to the general invitation to offer an IOTA Talk. Audience access will be controlled during the actual recordings in order to limit noise and due to the small size of the Chapel.

Plenary Sessions | 18:00-19:30

Session 2: War and Peace Plenary Session Chair: V. Rev. Prof. Anton Vrame (USA)
Friday, January 13 18:00-19:30 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Rev. Dr. Philip LeMasters (USA) Rev. Dr. Perry Hamalis (USA) Dr. Marian Simion (USA) Mr. Nicholas Sooy (USA)
	Session Description: While the war in Ukraine is on the forefront, more than 60% of war related deaths this year have occurred in Orthodox-dominant countries, e.g. Ethiopia. The topic, however, is understudied by Orthodox theologians. This plenary will provide an opportunity for participants to discuss matters of war and peace in Orthodox theology, just war theory, practices of just peacemaking, the impact of identity politics and civil law, and the role of the Orthodox Church in peacemaking work.

Session 3: Church and the Pandemic Plenary Session Chair: Prof. Gayle Woloschak (USA)

Friday, January 13 18:00-19:30 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Dr. Alexei Krindratch (USA) Rev. Dr. Christopher Knight (UK) Dr. Hermina Nedelescu (USA) Assoc. Prof. Doru Costache (Australia) Rev. Dr. Vasileios Thermos (Greece)
	Session Description: The goal of this Plenary is to discuss scientific, theological, pastoral and other issues that the Orthodox Church has faced as a result of the pandemic. The group will discuss both positive aspects and negative aspects of the Orthodox response and also reflect upon lessons to be learned for the future.

Session 5: For the Life of the World: Toward a Social Ethos of the Orthodox Church Plenary Session Chair: Dr. Carrie Frederick Frost (USA)
Friday, January 13 18:00-19:30 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Andromeda Hall (2nd floor)	Sr. Dr. Vassa Larin (Austria) Ms. Katerina Pekridou (Greece) Prof. Irina Paert (Estonia) Mr. Andrey Shishkov (Estonia)
	Session Description: Panelists will engage critically and constructively with the document For the Life of the World: Toward a Social Ethos of the Orthodox Church , each offering an informal response to the document followed by panel and audience discussion.

First Session | 9:00-11:00

Session 83: Healing of Wounded Memories: Theologies of Reconciliation and Justice in an Ecumenical Perspective Special Session Chairs: Dr. Regina Elsner (Germany) / Prof. Aristotle Papanikolaou (USA)
Saturday, January 14 9:00-11:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Pegasus Hall (3rd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Dr. Pavle Anicic (Germany): “Overcoming Wounded Memories? A Theological Approach to Remembrance and Justice in the Face of War Atrocities” Ms. Sarah Livick-Moses (USA): “Even So, Come, Lord Jesus: An Eschatological Theology of Trauma” Dr. Pavlo Smytsniuk (Ukraine): “Reconciliation, Truth-Telling and Collective Responsibility” Mr. Nicholas Sooy (USA): “The Cruciform Church”
	Session Description: Dialogue between the Orthodox and Catholic Churches has yielded encouraging results over the past decades. Nevertheless, in several parts of the world the reception of these results on the part of the local churches and communities has been and continues to be hampered by the legacy of historical conflicts, war and discrimination. For wounded memories encumber individuals, groups, parishes and churches, prevent the implementation of the fruits of decades of official and unofficial dialogues, and, even more tragically, paralyze mutual trust and impede the growth of sustainable peace. Not at least the escalated Russian war against Ukraine and its religious dimension point to the urgent need to deepen our theological discourse about wounded memories, transitional justice and reconciliation. With this special session, four contributions will tackle the socio-ethical approach on memory and reconciliation as part of a wider ecumenical

	effort to strengthen theological peace ethics. Departing from concrete local or confessional challenges, all papers are committed to the ecumenical theological discourse about the perspectives of churches within social and political conflicts. Peace ethics appear to be an understudied discipline in Orthodox theology while at the same time the war in Ukraine confronted Catholic and Protestant theologians with the ambivalences of their post-Cold-War peace ethics. Thus, the session is also part of a new initiative to open up new spaces for ecumenical praxis and theological encounter. The session addresses some key concepts of theological peace ethics such as reconciliation, memory, justice and repentance and opens the dialogue with other theological disciplines such as eschatology, liturgy, ecumenical theology, political theology and pastoral theology. We hope for a wider audience from all fields of Orthodox theology and churches, especially those affected by war and social conflict, in order to facilitate a vivid exchange on the theological approaches and the role of churches in conflict. The session is also part of the Pro Oriente Steering Committee for Orthodox-Catholic Dialogue (https://www.pro-oriente.at/en/initiatives/poscocc-en) and serves as a kick-off event for the project on Healing of Wounded Memories within the Orthodox-Catholic dialogue.

Session 48: Contemporary Challenges in Seminary Education Orthodox Theological Institutions Group Chair: Right Rev. Prof. Jack Khalil (Lebanon)
Saturday, January 14 9:00-11:00 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Rev. Dr. John Parker (USA): “A Missionary Priest’s Perspective on the Missional Character of the Seminary” Rev. Dr. Viorel Sava (Romania): “Theological Education and the Holy Monastery of Putna: Paradigms of Theological Mission in Romania Today” Session Description: Theological institutions are essentially missional in character: not only do they seek to provide high quality theological education to equip the next generation of ministers and teachers with the necessary learning and formation for effective ministry within the life of the Church, but they also enable them to better engage with the multifarious questions posed by contemporary society’s rapidly changing environment. Despite these major implications, the need for theological education institutions to reimagine their curricula so as to meet the needs of their current and future ecclesial and cultural contexts remains largely unaddressed. In critically reflecting upon the missional character of theology, this Group, largely constituted by leading members of Theological Schools, will present ways in which their educational programs are contributing towards building the church of the future and conducive to effective public discussion of issues of faith.

Session 46: Studies on Maximus the Confessor: Emergence and Significance for Orthodox Theology Patristics / Byzantine Orthodoxy Groups Chair: Dr. Vladimir Cvetković (Serbia)
Saturday, January 14 9:00-11:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Centaurus Hall (1st floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Most Rev. Prof. Bishop Maksim Vasiljević (USA): “A Commentary on St. Maximus the Confessor’s Epistle 9 to the Presbyter and Abbot Thalassius” Dr. Dionysius Skliris (Greece): “The Notion of the Logoi of Beings in Comparison with Post-Structural Theories on Performativity” Dr. Lyubomira Stefanova (Bulgaria): “St Maximus the Confessor on Symbols of Manifestation of God the Word in the World” Mr. Daniel Heide (Canada): “The World as Sacrament: Maximus the Confessor’s Doctrine of Creation as Divine Self-Impartation” Dr. Nichifor Tanase (Romania): “Maximus the Confessor as the Origins of Gregory Palamas’ Theory of ‘Natural Symbol’” Session Description: Slightly more than three decades ago Maximus the Confessor was a little known Greek Father without larger significance for Orthodox theology, which was, at least in the Orthodox diaspora, identified with Palamism or Neo-Palamism. For seventy years, Sergey Epifanovich’s studies on Maximus were the only major works on this Church Father undertaken from the Orthodox theological perspective. From the 1990s several monographs were written by Orthodox scholars on Maximus, and today he is the most studied author in Orthodox patristics. The purpose of the session is, apart from the investigation of certain aspects of Maximus’s rich theological thought, to also consider the reasons for the sudden interest in Maximus’s works in the period from 1990 to 2020, and to assess its significance for Orthodox theology.

Session 62: Kyiv as a Supra-Confessional Center of Christianity Church History Group Chairs: Dr. Serhii Shumylo (UK) / Dr. Nataliia Sinkevych (Germany)
Saturday, January 14 9:00-11:00	Dr. Oksana Prokopyuk (Ukraine/Germany): “The Centrality of Sacred Kyiv in the Light of ‘Communication of Donations’ in the Kyiv Orthodox Metropolia”

Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Dr. Svitlana Potapenko (Ukraine/Germany): “Historicizing Centrality: Kyiv as the ‘Mother of the Towns’ and the ‘Second Jerusalem’ in the writings by Mykhailo Kozachynsky (1699-1755)” Dr. Valentyna Los (Poland): “Union Church’s Tradition of the Kyiv Cult of St. Barbara” Dr. Nataliia Sinkevych (Germany): “Kyiv as a Place of Memory in the Roman Catholic Tradition” Dr. Serhii Shumylo (UK): “Kyiv and the Holy Mountain Athos: Spiritual and Cultural Ties in the 18th Century” Session Description: Starting from the first third of the seventeenth century, Kyiv is positioned as an important Christian center in Eastern Europe. At this period, the concept of “Kyiv as the second Jerusalem” is spreading. The session focuses on the perception of the idea of Kyiv as a sacral place in various confessional contexts: Orthodox, Uniate, and Roman Catholic.

Session 30: Icon of Christ: The Sight of Unity Orthodoxy and the Visual Arts Group Chair: Dr. Georgios Kordis (Greece)
Saturday, January 14 9:00-17:00 (all day) Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: St Catherine Foyer (ground floor)	Mr. Philip Davydov (Russia) Dr. Vanya Sapundzieva (Bulgaria) Mr. Ivan Polverari (Italy) Dr. Andrei Muşat (Romania) Dr. Mihai Coman (Romania) Dr. Todor Mitrović (Serbia) Dr. Georgios Kordis (Greece) Session Description: This session is presented in the form of an artistic workshop, during which participants will attempt to render the Icon of Christ in different artistic and expressive modes. It is a practical and creative response corresponding to the theme of the session and the Conference in general. This innovative form of painting-on-the-spot session could inspire a meaningful synergy of arts and theology, through interaction and discussion with other participants of the conference.

Session 76: Personal Conscience in the Age of Ecclesiastical Crisis Special Session sponsored by The Wheel Chairs: Dr. Katherine Kelaidis (USA) / Dr. Inga Leonova (USA)

Saturday, January 14 11:30-13:00 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Rev. Dr. John A. Jillions (USA): “We Cannot But Speak of What We Have Seen and Heard” (Acts 4:20): Personal Conscience and the Religious Authorities in the New Testament” Mr. Michael Berrigan Clark (USA): “The Holy Spirit Is Not Dead: Personal Conscience and Eschatology” Ms. Katerina Pekridou (Greece): “For You Have Been Baptized: Personal Conscience and the Gifts of Baptism” Rev. Dr. Charlie Bell (UK): “Notes for Lambeth: Personal Conscience in the Age of Ecclesiastical Crisis in the Anglican Communion” Rev. Jarel Robinson-Brown (UK): “Go Ask the Fathers’: Personal Conscience, Ecclesiastical Crisis, and the Fathers” Session Description: There is little doubt that we live in an era of unique challenges for Christianity. From the collapse of institutional religion throughout Europe and North America to increasing conflict around subjects of morality, tradition, and faith in every major Christian tradition, there seems no end to the troubles for and tensions within the contemporary Church. In the Orthodox Christian world, the Russian invasion of Ukraine has highlighted and perhaps accelerated this crisis. While there are most certainly ecclesiological and theological questions related to these conflicts, it is the moral and ethical component of Christian witness that has been most effected as many ask how the Church can speak with moral authority when the institution (and frequently its leaders) seems to be so morally compromised. This critical moment has left both lay and clergy in rough terrain with respect to their relationship to ecclesiastical authority, creating space to consider the role of personal conscience as never before. This panel therefore asks what role personal conscience ought to play in the Christian life, particularly the life lived in an era of ecclesiastical upheaval and crisis, with eye to exploring how a robust understanding of this issue might aid the Church and Her faithful in continuing to proclaim the Gospel in troubled times.
Session 56: Slavic Orthodoxy and Mission, 19th-20th c. Slavic Orthodoxy Group Chair: Dr. Anna Briskina-Muller (Germany)

Saturday, January 14 11:30-13:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Dr. Alison Kolosova (Estonia): “Limits of Inculturation: Nikolai Ilminskii’s Missionary Vision and Its Implementation in Late 19th/Early 20th Century Russia” Rev. 	Session Description: This session examines aspects of Slavic Orthodox missionary broadly conceived in the 19th and 20th centuries. What were the various motives and goals that inspired missionary efforts? In what ways did the understandings of mission and related notion of witness evolve during these centuries? How did the realities of the reigning regimes at a given time inform the ways in which Orthodox believers—clergy and laity—conceptualized mission and the practices which mission entails? What were the various media and forums by which missionary work was pursued?

Session 72 (Book Review): Politics, Society and Culture in Orthodox Theology in a Global Age, eds. Hans-Peter Grosshans and Pantelis Kalaitzidis (Paderbon: Brill/Schöningh, 2022) Chair: Prof. Hans-Peter Grosshans (Germany)
	Session Description: In 20 articles very prominent Orthodox theologians and experts on Orthodox theology and Orthodox Christianity from academic fields like sociology of religion or political studies are discussing, in what sense politics, society and culture are considered in Orthodox theology in a global horizon. Contributors Alfons Brüning, Ina Merdjanova, Nathaniel Wood, Cyril Hovorun, Dimitrios Moschos, Lucien Turcescu, K. M. George (Kondortha), Pantelis Kalaitzidis, Branko Sekulić, Georgios Vlantis, Nikolaos Asproulis, Atanas Slavov, Sveto Riboloff, Haralambos Ventis, Ioannis Kaminis, Irena Pavlović, Athanasios N. Papathanasiou, Chris Durante, Kateřina Kočandrlé Bauer, Vasilios N. Makrides reflect on various aspects of this still critical topic for modern Orthodoxy, such as the relationship between Orthodoxy and democracy, modernity, nationalism, multiculturalism, migration and human rights and problems that have sprung up in the last two centuries with the emergence of nation-states, causing peculiar forms of “ethno-theology”. The relationship of Orthodoxy with various models of governance (Byzantine Empire and “symphonia”, the Tsarist model, the Ottoman Empire, the Greek state after 1830, the European Union, etc.) is also discussed, as well as the situation in Eastern European countries after the collapse of the Soviet system, including also some cases where Orthodoxy is not the dominant state religion, as in India or the Middle East. The particularities of the post-modern era, when digital capabilities brought forth new possibilities and gave birth to new problems, for both theological research and Christian spirituality, has also been a subject of concern.

Session 78 (Round Table Discussion): The Status of Deaconesses in Worldwide Orthodoxy Sponsored by St. Phoebe Center for the Deaconess and Co-sponsored by Orthodoxy, Politics and International Relations Group Chair: Dr. Teva Regule (USA)
Saturday, January 14 11:30-13:00 Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Ms. Zipporah Mwaura (Kenya) Dr. Helen Theodoropoulos (USA) Dr. Spyridoula Denia Athanasapoulou-Kypriou (Greece) Dr. Elizabeth Prodromou (USA) Session Description: This session will present the status of the conversation (or lack thereof) about deaconesses in places from around the world, reflecting on contemporary calls for reinstitution (from church or academy) and the main reasons that such calls are being made, obstacles or challenges to reinstitution of this ancient order, and the possibilities or avenues for moving forward.

Session 79: The School of Theology in Athens between Modern Greece and Contemporary Global Orthodoxy Special Session Chair: Prof. Dimitrios Moschos (Greece)
Saturday, January 14 11:30-13:00 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	Prof. Konstantinos Kornarakis (Greece): “The Department of Theology Today: Its Role in Religious Education and Research” Prof. Fotios Apostolos (Greece): “Liturgical Renewal and Pastoral Work in Contemporary Greece: The Role of the Athens Faculty” Prof. Vassiliki Stathokosta (Greece): “Athens in the Global Orthodox Theology” H.E. Prof. Gregorios Papathomas, Metropolitan of Peristeri (Greece): “The Athens Department of Theology Faced with the Political and Social Aspects of Modernity” Session Description: The Department of Theology at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens is part of the up to 1982 unified Faculty or School of Theology of the Athens University. Founded in 1837 as the first Orthodox theological faculty within a modern

	university in the Eastern Mediterranean, it witnessed the challenges of the encounter between the ecclesiastical life grounded on traditional values and the rapidly transforming modern society. The study of the Bible under the light of textual criticism, the study of non-Christian religions, studying and living in a political context radically different than that of an “Orthodox Empire” but at the same time supporting the national idea of Greek irredentism and contesting for the legacy of the Byzantine identity, these were some of the challenges that faced modern Greek theology in the university. Since the institutional frame and the educational background of many theology professors was the German-speaking academia, the Theological Faculty was often severely criticized as “rational” and “crypto protestant” in contrast to the theological language of the pure traditional piety in the liturgical life and the ascetic cell. This criticism escalated during the last decades of rejuvenated traditionalism in many Orthodox countries, Greece being among them. However, the Faculty graduates staffed many pivotal ecclesiastical institutions, such as the Elderly Patriarchates, and many professors were involved in the Ecumenical Dialogue. A self-presentation of the Department of Theology is an exemplary reflection of the adventurous intervention of Orthodox theology in a society that marches in the future using ambivalent tools, such as traditionalism or nationalism. This presentation addresses senior researchers of the Orthodox world’s contemporary theological and intellectual currents but also junior researchers or students who want to be informed about studying theology and understanding contemporary Greece.

Session 18: Orthodox Education and Non-Orthodox Communities Orthodox Education Group Chair: V. Rev. Prof. Anton C. Vrame (USA)

Saturday, January 14 11:30-13:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Prof. Niki Papageorgiou (Greece) / Prof. Vasiliki Mitropoulou (Greece) (joint presentation): “Contemporary Challenges of Orthodox Christian Religious Education: The Case of St. Athanasios School of Theology in Kinshasa, Congo” Mr. Nikolaos Tsirevelos (Greece/Albania): “Another Type of Witness: Interfaith and Intercultural Dialogue. The challenges in these contexts are multi-faceted, from the encounter of Orthodox Christianity with a wider non-Orthodox environment to forming an Orthodox Christian identity in adults and children where there are few social supports. Increasingly, Orthodox Christian education confronts religious diversity even within the families of those being instructed in the Orthodox Faith. In addition, “national” Orthodox identities may face challenges of assimilating “other” Orthodox identities because of immigration into a country (e.g., immigration of Russian Orthodox Christians into Greece).

Session 59: Historical and Contemporary Perspectives on Discipleship and Spiritual Formation (joint panel with the Lausanne Orthodox Initiative) Missiology Group, co-sponsored by Lausanne Orthodox Initiative Chair: Rev. Canon Mark Oxbrow (UK)
Saturday, January 14 15:00-17:00 Building: Achilleion Cinema	Dr. Nathan Hoppe (Albania): “Fostering Local Eucharistic Communities as the Key to Orthodox Missiology” Dr. Ralph Lee (UK): “Learning from Tradition: Ethiopian Evangelicals and Their Research on Orthodox Texts and Practice”

Room: Nikos Kolovos Hall (ground floor)	Rev. Dr. Daniel Coriu (Japan): “Romanian Orthodox Mission in Japan: Between Human Weakness and God’s Providence” Rev. Dr. Doru Marcu (Romania): “Being a Disciple of Christ from a Romanian Orthodox Perspective”
	Session Description: Making disciples of all nations lies at the heart of the life of the Church and her mission. It also represents a significant challenge to Eastern and Oriental Orthodox Churches across the world in the context of late modernity. The panel will discuss historical and contemporary theological and experiential perspectives on the initiation, spiritual formation, and lifelong nurture of disciples in both Orthodox homelands and diaspora contexts. It seeks to explore the inter-related ecclesial, communal, relational, experiential, cognitive, intellectual, credal, sacramental, ritual and other dimensions of initial grounding and ongoing apprenticeship for Christian service and witness.

Session 84 (Round Table Discussion): Modern Hellenic Orthodoxy Special Session Chair: Dr. Nikolaos Asproulis (Greece)
Saturday, January 14 15:00-17:00 Building: Evangelical Church Room: Main Hall Address: Taki Ikonomaki 55, Volos 382 21	Dr. Norman Russell (UK): “Modern Greek Theology and the Fathers: a Complex Relationship” Dr. Ana Petrache (Italy): “Political Theology and Contemporary Issues” Dr. Vasilios Makrides (Germany): “Orthodox Christianity, Modernity, and Nationalism” Dr. Evdoxia Delli (Greece): “Perspectives and Challenges in Contemporary Orthodox Theology, Emerging from the Science–Theology Dialogue” Dr. Stavros Yangazoglou (Greece): “The Renewal of Modern Greek Orthodox Theology: Theological Trends in the 20th and 21st Centuries” Dr. Paul Ladouceur (Canada): “Modern Russian and Modern Greek Theology in Global Orthodoxy: Continuities and Discontinuities” Session Description: Modern Greek theological thought constitutes a fundamental component of the contemporary global orthodoxy, since during the last century at least, important personalities have emerged in the field of Greek-speaking theology (from Alivizatos, Trembelas and Karmiris to Romanides, Yannaras and Zizioulas), whose prolific intellectual and scholarly achievements have made a creative contribution to the development and evolution of Orthodox theological discourse and have opened new paths of theological interaction both at

	the pan-Orthodox and inter-Christian levels. With regard to the achievements of Greek-speaking theology in the 20th century, one need only think of the emergence of the theology of the person, as a result, of course, of creative contact with the theological thought of the Russian diaspora. On the other hand, one should not overlook certain negative elements, such as, for example, the concession to the temptation of nationalism. One of the inherent difficulties, however, in approaching and evaluating these efforts is the language barriers, as a significant part of the production is in Greek and translations are still sporadic and fragmentary. A few attempts at assessment have been made (by Spiteris and others for example), nevertheless they have not been able to fully and comprehensively portray and assess the theological literary production and the various dynamics and trends that have developed over the last century in the particular and idiosyncratic field of religious intellectual thought and reflection in the Greek-speaking world. At the same time, certain aspects of modern Greek theological production have either been ignored or deliberately misunderstood, with the result that the arduous task of systematically exposing and evaluating contemporary Greek theology still remains a desirable task. The purpose of this session, therefore, is to highlight some of the personalities and trends, to objectively evaluate the content and assess the legacy of Greek theology in the context of global Orthodoxy.

Session 12: Theological Perspectives on Race, Gender, and Disability Moral Theology and Theological Anthropology Group Chair: V. Rev. Dr. Philip LeMasters (USA)
Saturday, January 14 15:00-17:00 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Dr. Nathan Placencia (USA): “Race, Embodiment, and Resurrection” Dr. Petre Maican (Belgium): “An Anthropology of Neputinței: A Romanian Orthodox Insight into Disability Theology” Rev. Dr. Brian Patrick Mitchell (USA): “Male and Female as Archic and Eucharistic Modes of Relation” Rev. Dr. Vasileios Thermos (Greece): “The Human Person at the Borders: Two New and Serious Problems in Bioethics” Session Description: The articulation of Orthodox Christian theological perspectives on the hotly contested areas of race, gender, and disability are unfortunately few and far between. Using the resources of the Orthodox tradition, the papers in this session seek to address them in a theologically deep and rigorous fashion, and in a manner faithful to the Church’s mission for the salvation of all.

Session 75: Raising Orthodox Christian Families in the East African Federation Special Session Chair: Rev. Dr. Cornelius Wambi Gulere (Uganda)

Saturday, January 14 15:00-17:00 Building: Forum Center Room: Pegasus Hall (3rd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Rev. Dr. Cornelius Wambi Gulere (Uganda): TBD Rev. Dr. Nicholas Ssekamwa Bayego (Uganda): TBD Ms. Gladys Nalubega Musisi (Uganda): TBD Ms. Despina Namwembe (Uganda): TBD Ms. Elizabeth Zimba Kisiigha (Uganda): TBD Mr. Titus Ndhokero Gulere (Greece): TBD Session Description: The session aims at highlighting the opportunities and challenges faced by Orthodox Christian families in the East African Community federation. An Orthodox Christian family needs constant nurturing, training, and communion. Long distances from Church life have compromised some of the best stewards of the Church. Limited access to the Mysteries, especially, Confession, Eucharist, and Marriage makes the faithful nominal and compromised as many faithful are separated from Orthodox parish life by distance, intermarriage, pressures from schematics, and jobs away from the Church community. The need to strengthen monasteries as centers of formation, exploration of the faith, and nurturing of the young and old is now. Free flow of not only the Hierarchy across the country and diocesan boundaries but also the clergy and laity in professional fields to collectively defend, protect, grow and preserve the Orthodox Christian family in the EA/AU federation.

Eucharistic Ecclesiology and the Ecumenism of Blood” Session Description: The first theologian who spoke of eucharistic ecclesiology was the Russian Orthodox church historian and canonist Nicholas Afanasiev (1893-1966). He claimed to have re-discovered and

	systematized the original ecclesiology of the early church, traced back to the writings of St. Paul. While Afanasiev's work was received at once with admiration and bitter criticism, the eucharistic ecclesiology went on to shape the theological discussion on the nature of the church in the second half of the twentieth century. Although it is customary today to talk about this ecclesiology in singular, there is no one normative version of it. Many authors of different Christian confessions offer their corrections of Afanasiev's work while proposing a variety of their own understandings of the "eucharistic nature" of the church: from the Orthodox John Zizioulas and John Romanides to the Catholic J.-M. Tillard and Joseph Ratzinger to name a few. The goal of this session is two-fold. First, to explore the variety of contemporary eucharistic ecclesiologies. Second, to reflect on what these ecclesiologies have in common, to understand why various authors claim their ecclesiological systems to be "eucharistic," and to reflect on the significance of this claim.

Session 71 (Book Review): Orthodox Tradition and Human Sexuality Chair: Dr. Ashley Purpura (USA)
Saturday, January 14 18:00-19:30 Building: Forum Center Room: Centaurus Hall (1st floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Dr. Thomas Arentzen (Sweden) Prof. Aristotle Papanikolaou (USA) Dr. Ashley Purpura (USA) Dr. Gregory Tucker (Germany) Prof. George Demacopoulos (USA) Prof. Nina Glibetic (USA) Session Description: This session aims to launch and review the new edited volume Orthodox Tradition and Human Sexuality (Fordham University Press, November 2022). The session will feature opening remarks from the editors (Arentzen, Papanikolaou, and Purpura) to introduce the volume to the audience, present three reviews of the book (Demacopoulos, Tucker, and Glibetic), and then open for response and discussion. The session would be of interest to most IOTA participants, and many of its international contributors will be present at the conference. The book offers theological, historical, and sociological treatments of sexuality in the Orthodox Christian world. Within its unique history, theology, and tradition, Orthodox Christianity holds rich resources for engaging challenging questions of sexuality in new and responsive ways. Through fifteen distinct chapters, written by leading scholars and theologians, this book offers a developed treatment of sexuality in the Orthodox Christian world by approaching the subject from scriptural, patristic, theological, historical, and sociological perspectives. Chapters devoted to practical and pastoral insights, as well as reflections on specific cultural contexts, engage the human

	realities of sexual diversity and Christian life. From re-thinking scripture to developing theologies of sex, from eschatological views of eros to re-evaluations of the Orthodox responses to science, this book offers new thinking on pressing, present-day issues and initiates conversations about homosexuality and sexual diversity within Orthodox Christianity. It presents both academic and pastoral reflections on sex, seeking to open up the conversation about homosexuality and sexual diversity within Orthodox Christianity, aiming to create an agora for discussing the sexualities that are often thought of as untraditional.

Session 91 (Book Review): Nicholas Loudovikos, Analogical Identities: The Creation of the Christian Self. Beyond Spirituality and Mysticism in the Patristic Era (Brepols, 2019)

Chair: Rev. Prof. Nikolaos Loudovikos (Greece)

Saturday, January 14 18:00-19:30 Building: Exoraistiki Room: Main Hall	Dr. Paul Ladouceur (Canada) Dr. Miconja Knezevic (Serbia) Dr. Christoph Schneider (UK) Rev. Prof. Nikolaos Loudovikos (Greece) Session Description: The book deals with the relation of nihilism, as an ontology of personhood as will to power, with Christian Mysticism, running through Origen and Augustine, Descartes, Nietzsche and post-modernity. The book searches for alternative patristic anthropological sources of the Greek-Western Self, beyond what has been traditionally called “Spirituality” and “Mysticism”. It strives to decipher, retrieve and re-embody the deeper mature patristic concept of selfhood, beyond the dichotomies of mind and body, essence and existence, transcendence and immanence, person and nature, that is, as an analogical identity.

Session 94: Academic and Ecclesiastical Freedom: When to Speak the Truth in Love Special Session sponsored by OTSA Chair: Dr. Teva Regule (USA)
Saturday, January 14 18:00-19:30 Building: Park Hotel Room: Jason Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	Dr. Jim Skedros (USA): “Parresia: Speaking Truth to Power in Byzantine Lives of Saints” Dr. Sergius Halvorsen (USA): “An Orthodox Christian Rhetoric of Humility” Mr. Menios Papadimitriou (USA): “Spiritual Arms and Influences: Mechanisms of Accountability from Titus to Twitter” Session Description: What is prophetic “speaking” in the Church? How can we use our voices to speak to and within the Church? How do we use our academic and ecclesiastical voices in this time of turmoil? As scholars, we have a responsibility to use our work for the building up of the Body of Christ. However, how we do this within both the Academy and in the Ecclesial setting can sometimes be fraught with peril. How can we contribute to the ongoing discussions of our day? These are some of the questions that we will explore in this session.

Session 81 (Round Table Discussion): St John Chrysostom Orthodox Research Institute and Its Relevance for Contemporary Orthodox Academia and Ecclesial Life Special Session Chair: Rev. Dr. Stephen Headley (France)
Saturday, January 14 18:00-19:30 Building: Forum Center Room: Orpheus Hall (2nd floor) Address: Deligiorgi 9, Volos 382 21	Dr. Viorel Coman (Belgium) Dr. Petre Maican (Romania) Dr. Emil Mărginean (Romania) Dr. Olga Sevastyanova (UK) Dr. Nikolaos Asproulis (Greece) Dr. Bogdan-Vladut Brinza (Romania) Session Description: The Orthodox Research Institute of St John Chrysostom connects people involved in research in Christian Eastern Orthodox theology without necessarily being affiliated with other academic institutions. Most of its members have temporary research positions at universities. The mission of the organization is to provide an academic platform which allows researchers to continue research on the highest academic level while between employment and enable continuity of their belonging to a research community. The group is a pan-orthodox research community that unites people from different churches/denomination and thus promotes religious harmony. The organization existed for almost eight years on a local (Scottish level) as the Orthodox Research Group of St John Chrysostom (www.orthodoxresearchgroup.com). Since 2014 it has been running weekly research seminars in Orthodox theology in Aberdeen, conducting original research and publishing in academic journals and books, collaborating simultaneously with people from different universities. With time the group has expanded, and it currently has around 120 members from all over the world. All the members have subject area expertise, a doctoral degree and conduct original research. Since February 2019, ORIC has been a registered Charity (Charity Number: SC049056) as Orthodox Research Institute of St John Chrysostom SCIO (https://www.totalgiving.co.uk/charity/orthodox-research-institute-of-st-john-chrysostom-scio). The Institute's purpose is to create a place for collective discussions and research. It does this through regular research and study seminars and conferences. Since 2014 it has run a weekly research seminar now available to join by Zoom for a wider public. It has participants from the UK, USA, France, Belgium, Sweden, Greece and Romania. Since 2018 Orthodox Research Institute of St John Chrysostom has organized four

	International Conferences in cooperation with the Charles University of Prague and with the Theological Department of the Babeş-Bolyai University of Cluj-Napoca, and in the year 2022, in collaboration with the Metropolitan of Moldavia and Bukovina Teofan and the Faculty of Theology in Iasi, while since 2019 ORIC has published three academic volumes in cooperation with the Volos Academy for Theological Studies.

Session 95 (Round Table Discussion): Orthodoxy after the 11th WCC Assembly: Challenges and Perspectives Special Session Chair: Mr. Georgios Vlantis (Germany)
Saturday, January 14 18:00-19:30 Building: Park Hotel Room: Argo Hall Address: Deligiorgi 2, Volos 382 21	H.E. Metropolitan Job Getcha (Switzerland) Prof. Hans-Peter Grosshans (Germany) Dr. Razvan Porumb (UK) Mr. Georgios Vlantis (Germany) Session Description: The 11th Assembly of the World Council of Churches (WCC) took place in Karlsruhe, Germany, from August 31 to September 8, 2022. Its theme was: “Christ’s love moves the world to reconciliation and unity.” Ex definitio every WCC Assembly is a historic event for the ecumenical movement. This time the WCC supreme body of directors met on European soil after 54 years (last time it was in Uppsala 1968), at a critical point marked by the ongoing Covid pandemic and the tragedy of the war in Ukraine. A few months after the decisive ecumenical event, this special session aims to offer an evaluation of the Orthodox contribution to the Assembly and to sketch perspectives for further Orthodox ecumenical engagement in the light of the experience in Karlsruhe. The conflict in Ukraine raises crucial questions about the attitude of certain Orthodox Churches and its compatibility with the ethos of the Ecumenical Movement. How did their delegates confront this issue in Karlsruhe? How does Orthodoxy perceive, in the variety of traditions of its autocephalous Churches, the unity of Christians, and what steps does it consider necessary for its realization and further experience? How can it contribute fruitfully to the ecumenical movement, given the strong intra-Orthodox tensions, the strong presence of anti-ecumenical tendencies within it, but also the new situation defined by the Ukrainian crisis and the stance of the Russian Orthodox Church towards it? This session is especially relevant to the study of Orthodox Christianity and concretely to the study of its view on ecumenism. It will focus on the assessment of the Orthodox contribution to a historic ecumenical event and it will furthermore reflect on perspectives and ways of optimization of the Orthodox presence in the inter-Christian dialogue.

	The session aims at stimulating the Orthodox interest in WCC ecumenism. Moreover it aims to form solid criteria for the continuation of an effective Orthodox engagement in the ecumenical movement. The intended audience are scholars who are engaged in ecumenical dialogues.
